PHYSICIANS CORNERED.

I quite see there is not in the whole of a physician's make up the slightest particle in sympathy and pity to such as seem so to witness the excruciating pains of a poor mortal suffering from that fearful disease Rheumatism. Heretofore there has been considerable theory of opinion among medical men and the public at large of this disease some locating it in the fibrous or muscular tissues of the system and others viewing it as an acute nervous disease but all seem generally admitted to be a disease of the blood or on a poison circulating in the blood, and further it is admitted that rheumatism can never be thoroughly cured without exterminating such poison matters from the blood by a constitutional internal remedy. We feel confident that none will feel disposed and rejoice more than those sensitive physician who has found out that a sure cure for this [illegible] disease has been discovered. The following testimony from a Physician cannot fail to satisfy all that the

PILLSBURY.

For a number of years this journal and its editor have received a marked degree of attention from the Democratic press, and the unabating performance of what we regarded as our political duty has subjected us to an uninterrupted torrent of abuse by the wiper sheets which are used as vents for all the blackguardism of the party. In one sense we ought, perhaps, to be grateful by these malignant attentions since they afford the most conspicuous proof of our entire lack of fellowship with the features while the vilification of the organs of the sinners is the only compliment which we could honorably accept from such an irresponsible source. We are frequently assured by some one of these organs whose pipes have become shrill in screaking at us that our opinions are of no consequence that our paper is without influence and that our exposures of their meanness are ineffectual but whenever a unprincipled we are sure to find them pouring forth in concert or assembly for our especial benefit. There is no great pleasure in encountering nuisances of any kind and a number of the Democratic papers in this State can only be classed among the most disgusting. But the duty of exposing and denouncing the disloyal influence upon the parties whose guiding star is not political interests of Maine is one which we fully recognize and one which we shall discharge cheerfully and fearlessly without regard to the nauseous and nonsense character of the evils which we may have to end in suppressing.

And of that utmost contemptible debased and filthy in the Democratic "journalism" of Maine the name which we have placed at the head of this article will be universally recognized as an expressive symbol. It is unfortunate for humanity that such a state can find shelter in its guise, and unfortunate for any one to suffer any contact with such a melancholy example of the possibilities of political degradation. But unfortunately for the Democratic party of Maine this embodiment of treachery falsehood and indecency has thrust himself into prominence at the very head of the organization, and as chairman of the State Committee and sponsor for the Gubernatorial candidate must be dealt with as a representative of the dangerous men who are now managing the party. In an editorial upon the tendencies and leadership of the Maine Democracy, we referred to the notorious fact of Pillsbury's having "incited resistance to the draft," whereupon that individual retorted in glaring capitals "You're a liar." In reply we proceeded to give conclusive and overwhelming proof of our assertion by citing from his infamous record as made with his own pen in the columns of that "peaceable sheet," the Franklin Patriot. He undoubtedly thought that those proofs were beyond our reach, and the shudder of indignation and disgust which went over the whole State when the people were thus reminded of the villainous utterances of the present Chairman of the Democratic State Committee, was enough to appal even so callous a demagogue as Pillsbury. He has made no attempt to lift the load of ignominy piled upon him from the columns of his own treasonable sheet, but from out the depths of his abasement he sends forth a tirade of personal abuse and deliberate slander which he calmly thinks will stay our hand. But Pillsbury has quite mistaken his man, for once at least, and instead of imitating his course in shunning the issue, we meet it squarely by denouncing him as a contemptible but malicious libeller.

The desperate and reckless man has seen fit to go back some sixteen years, and across the ocean, to find pretext for recklessly charging the editor of this paper with the commission of an infamous crime. The public have the slightest interest in the personal experiences of individuals in their private capacity, but Pillsbury has made a serious mistake if he supposed that we would hesitate in exposing the atrocious nature of his calumny. On the contrary, we hail the opportunity for exhibiting his unscrupulous and monstrous character in all its deformity, by a brief statement of facts which are matter of public and official record.

In the year 1856, the present editor of this paper was the chief officer of a merchant ship commanded by his respected father, engaged in trading between the cotton ports and Europe. At Liverpool, England, a controversy arose with the crew who wished a discharge, to which they were not entitled in a foreign port, and they resorted to an expedient familiar to shipmasters, that of complaining to the Consul of ill-treatment in order to attain their object. As in nearly all such cases, the chief officer was singled out for the principal complaints, and the crew, under the manipulations of just such a pettifogger as Pillsbury, succeeded in obtaining the interference of the Consul, who caused an investigation to be held. The charges and complaints were shown to be utterly vindictive and unfounded, and were promptly dismissed by the experienced British Magistrate before whom the inquiry was had, and by the United States Consul who expressed the utmost regret that he had given any credence whatever thereto. It is this case, thus adjudicated and disposed of by the representatives of two nationalities, and the circumstances of which are well known to a number of the most respectable ship-masters in Maine, that Pillsbury has the hardihood to make the basis of deliberate and outrageous slander. It has been deliberate on his part, for no person ever told him the falsehoods which he has uttered, and there is hardly a redeeming syllable of truth in the libellous tirade of his invention. Right here, as in the case of the Franklin Patriot, he will find himself confronted by an incontrovertible record, and to her cost.

We have few words to say to the fellow or his kind. They will pursue their dirty avocations until the hand of restraint is forcibly laid upon them, but with all their malice they cannot lie fast enough or hard enough to intimidate this journal. The man who would resort to such vile calumny in revenge for discomfiture in political discussion, would not hesitate to levy black-mail, but in selecting us for a victim Pillsbury will be less fortunate than in some other ventures. For the credit of public intelligence and decency we are glad to know that the disgraceful methods of this man and his allies in falsehood and filth are so heartily despised by the respectable members of his own party as by us. He has sunk to a level where his degradation to meet him, and in looking down upon him we find an odor of moral miasma rising to our nostrils. We leave him wallowing in the mire of an unburied and unvisited contempt.

THE SOUTHERN QUESTION YET

[From the Boston Journal.]

Probably the intelligent man is not to be found who dreams that we shall go through the next Presidential campaign without an issue founded on Southern affairs. It will perhaps differ materially from the former presentments of that question, but we certainly hope that it will be fought over with less excitement and bitterness than ever before as we believe it will be. To imagine however, that the tremendous contest which brought the nation to the verge of ruin and sowed the land with graves can have been totally effaced in ten years, like lines written in water, so that questions of finance and policy shall wholly monopolize the political field, is something utterly unwarranted by history and opposed to all the signs of the times. We recognize cheerfully the splendid progress which has been made toward reconciliation and peace between the two sections. The causes of difference have been lessening in number and in strength. The majority of the Southern white people declare with evident sincerity that they would not restore slavery if they could. With less unanimity, but still speaking the majority vote, they declare that they have no desire now, to take the ballot away from the freedmen. The rule of the carpet-bagger—almost an inevitable incident of the reconstruction era—has been overthrown in almost every Southern State, even though accomplished under Northern born men like Governor Chamberlain, of South Carolina. How, then can the policy of the Southern enemies of the Republican party express itself in the coming campaign?

Perhaps there will not be any formal expression of any such antagonism. The general platforms of the two parties may possibly read so much alike each other that in voting Free labor or Englishman ought will want to know what all the turmoil—for we are pretty sure to have it—of next year could be about. And yet we all know well enough that in no other part of the country is the result of the struggle likely to be awaited so intently, or to have so much practical influence as at the South. An unusually well-informed and thoughtful correspondent of the West, who has recently traveled over the cotton States, some of them more than once, makes this statement, viz: "Today, in none of these states can be found a half-dozen men of the white population, resident here before the war, who fully and fairly assent to the proposition that the negro should be vested with that full equal share with the whites in political affairs which is guaranteed him in the Fifteenth Amendment." In the same connection we make the following further extract:

"This it is that explains what was meant by the leading lawyer of Mississippi, when he said to me, 'What we want is a national administration that is in sympathy with us.' It is what was intended by Gov Smith, of Georgia, when, after he had confessed that since Bullock's overthrow the white voters had without hindrance rolled the State 'and had the numerical strength to enable them peaceably, constitutionally to continue that rule, he added 'What we want is a national administration that will let us alone.' In other words, what they want is a national administration which would sympathize with them in their efforts to kick the negro out of politics, practically reducing his vote to a nullity—a national administration that would cast all the power of its influence and patronage into the scale which practically outweigh the Fifteenth Amendment."

These are statements well deserving of careful consideration. What is manifest is, that the Democratic white people of the South have an eagerness of desire witnessed nowhere else to get the Republicans out of power and set up a Democratic administration. They evidently mean a profit by the latter if they get the chance. The theory given in the extracts above is plausible from the fact that wherever these Southern Democrats have got the power they have substantially "eliminated the negro from politics," to use the phrase of one of their favorite Mississippi champions, whom, by the way, we also see mentioned for the United States Senate. The mere prestige of having the United States Government allied with their friends and all the Southern Federal officers occupied by themselves would suffice to give upon men the sovereign control of the blacks politically; and, with the means in their hands, could they be expected to stop a sort at this point of moderation? These are questions put by the situation itself. They merely imply average human nature subjected to the existing Southern influences. The guardians, as well as the framers, of the constitutional amendments, if in earnest in spirit of impartial liberty in the States, can not afford to be unmindful of this pertinent

POLITICAL AND PERSONAL.

The New York Tribune says: No more letters about the mercy quail have been received at that office "than on any other object—we had almost said than on all other subjects combined the Beecher trial included."

Col. Forney says that a number of American gentlemen have offered to present to the English Government a full-length statue of General Grant or Abraham Lincoln, in the hope that the English Government would be willing to send to us for the Centennial a full-length statue of Prince Albert or Queen Victoria.

The long contest in Michigan for the admission of homeopathy to instruction in the medical school of the State University at Ann Arbor has at length been closed by the establishment of two homeopathic professorships and the appropriation of $6,000 by the Legislature to pay the salaries.

We repeat it. The conduct of men during the war for National unity has everything to do with their fitness for position. We may excuse the man who cast in his lot with the South, being moved thereto by the accidents of birth and education. But for the man who stood up in communities where loyalty was the rule and denied his country—for that man there is only intolerance. There is no forgiveness for him. He was false then and he is false now. He we will be false to-morrow, and the week, and next year.—Phila. No. American.

The Washington Chronicle has been carefully counting the Democratic office-seekers who will be on hand for the various positions within the control of the next House of Representatives, and it makes out the following formidable list:

|---|---|
| Speaker | 6 |
| Clerk | 11 |
| Sergeant-at-arms | 15 |
| Postmaster | 10 |
| Doorkeeper | 21 |
| Cashier | 32 |
| Employes under Speaker | 35 |
| " " Clerk | 108 |
| " " Sergeant-at-Arms | 55 |
| " " Doorkeeper | 475 |
| " " Postmaster | 95 |
| Capitol Police | 30 |
| Total Expectants | 893 |

We are not at all surprised to hear from Democratic sources that the rag money leaders in Ohio were "the peace-at-any-price men of 1864, the bold resolutionists of 1868, the passive-policy men of 1872." If they couldn't break down the country in one way they will try another.

The Cumberland County Republican Convention is called to meet at Portland, Tuesday August 10.

DELEGATES CHOSEN. The election of delegates at Presque Isle to the Congressional Convention was contested by the "Liberals" but resulted in the choice of Freeman Hayden and H. R. Downes, defeating David Dudley and Amasa Howe, by 36 to 26 votes. Maysville has chosen C. F. Ferguson, Blaine, H. O. Perry; and Houlton, L. B. Johnson, W. M. Robinson, W. L. Boyd, Benj. Bussey and John H. Bradford. The Sunrise says the above are all favorable to Mr. Powers.

THE BOYS WHO WON AT CORNELL. President White, in his speech on the victory last week, said, after defending physical culture as a cure for dyspepsia, to say nothing of bad theology and politics:

"I am glad to bear testimony in regard to the scholarship of the boating men. Today the Registrar has furnished to me the official statement of the standing of the members of the University crew which has won the race, and I am glad to say that it represents admirable scholarship in the various departments, and I feel warranted in making the statement that were you to choose out by lot an equal number of students from the University, the chances are two to one that you would have in the last many men who have been as fit, if not more diligent in their intellectual pursuits as the University."

BANK ROBBERY AT WINTHROP.

The Safe Opened with Nitro-glycerine.

THE REPORTS HEARD BUT NOT HEEDED.

The Burglars Supposed to Have Taken $55,000.

The National and Savings Banks Safe Blown Open.

WINTHROP July 23. The safe of the Winthrop National Bank and the Winthrop Savings Bank was broken open this morning at 3 o'clock and rifled of its valuables. An entrance was effected by means of nitro glycerine. The bank is in the second story of a building it occupies, and is surrounded by dwellings and stores and one man was in bed in the next house not ten feet from the safe.

The Robbers Thought to have Secured $55,000.

The officers of the bank are reticent as to the amount of plunder secured but the village people think that $15,000 in bills and $40 000 in U S bonds is not an excessive estimate Mr C M Bailey, the President of the bank states that its credit will not be impaired and intimates that the amount stolen was not as large as supposed by outsiders

A connected statement of the affair can be given as follows The bank is surrounded by stores and dwellings and is at the business centre of the village At about half past 3 people living in the neighborhood were awakened by a loud explosion. It is guessed by the report of a gun something of the sort, and no alarm was given At about that time there was another explosion of which no more notice was taken. At just 3 there was a third and a terrific explosion which aroused every body in the vicinity

Coolly walking off with the Plunder

Four minutes later three men were seen to leave the bank one of them carrying a bag. They walked rapidly up the street toward a number of sleds being kept by some residents from windows of the village effectually pursued by one or two who watched opposite the church they had left a covered carriage—two driving and a third on horseback. The road taken was that which leads towards Lewiston through Monmouth. At half past 3 the robbers were driving furiously through the latter place As soon as the discovery was made teams were sent in every direction and the telegraph announced the burglars to all part sof the State

The most singular part of the affair, is that the successive explosions should not have put everybody in the alarm The burglars left behind them part of a kit of burglars tools The supposed burglars arrived at Bath at 6 a m on upon the Boston

Westy Leeds

Deposits in the savings bank were heavier than usual The losses in this bank will be fully made up and examined to the poore class Among those whose names are on special deposit was one of Wing four thousand dollars in government bonds

A $64,000 Pile Missed

Not side with Mr Wing's were forty thousand dollars of D Stanley and twenty-five thousand of P G Bradford both of which remained untouched Detectives have been sent for from different places and a diligent search will be made

Injury to Books and Papers

The National Bank has sent for more bills and will be doing business in a day or two The books in the upper part of the safe were not injured Many notes and pieces of value were torn into shreds and were found in a badly but not hopelessly mutilated condition If the flash was planned with

Three Men Arrested on suspicion of being the Robbers

PORTLAND, July 23 A despatch to the Argus says Detective C M Wormell, at Bethel arrested three men named Lewis Lewis, Thomas H Clark and George B Lewis on suspicion of their being the burglars of the Winthrop Bank No money or other securities were found on them, but they are to be taken to Winthrop Sheriff Carr of Winthrop is confident they are the men

FROM BIDDEFORD

Supposed Incendiaries and Thieves Arrested—The Police after more of the same sort.

BIDDEFORD July 23 The police have arrested three persons and are after more charged with theft at the burning of Old Orchard House Upon one a number of pawn tickets for jewelry stolen from guests of that house were found A very large amount of property was stolen, and officers are busily seeking its hiding places

FROM SACO

Attempted Suicide.

SACO July 23 Frank Prescott, aged 30 living six miles out of town with Mrs Tripp a war widow of 30 was on Sunday turned away a young man named Cummings having secured his place Wednesday afternoon Prescott took a razor, went to Mrs Tripp s, and in her presence drew it across his left arm cutting a large gash but not severing an artery The razor was taken away from him and he then fled to the woods He was found some time after and his wound was dressed. He had to be watched to prevent another attempt at suicide

FROM PORTLAND

Thieves Arrested.

PORTLAND July 23 Luke McGuire and a barber named Parris have been arrested for thieving at the Old Orchard fire and it is thought they may be the incendiaries

FROM AUGUSTA.

FOREIGN NEWS.

GREAT BRITAIN.

Plimsoll's Protest.

LONDON, July 23. A protest placed by Mr Plimsoll on the table of the House of Commons last night is published In it Mr. Plimsoll says "I protest in the name of God against the delay of the shipping bill, although the bill is an a rageous sham, there is enough humanity and knowledge in the House to change it into a good measure. He denounces the present laws against a breach of contract which leaves sailors who have unknowingly agreed to sail in unseaworthy ships the alternative of the jail or death," and continues, "I charge the Government with wittingly and unwittingly playing into the hands of the maritime murderers, inside and outside of this House, to secure the continuance of the present murderous system I desire to unmask the villains who set in this House, its representatives of a more numerous, but not greater villains outside. I demand the bill be proceeded with —failing in this, I lay upon the heads of the Premier and his colleagues the blood of all who perish next winter from preventable causes and denounce against him and them the wrath of God

Plimsoll's Arrangements for His Little Scene

The Central press report of the scenes in the House over the shipping bill, say it was remarkable in the [illegible] that there was much method in Plimsoll s method Like out burst was apparently prearranged Plimsoll came to the House with his valise and was prepared to go to prison He has been in the library of the Commons to-day searching for precedents. He persists in his refusal to withdraw his remarks A tremendous scene is expected when the subject comes up again Thursday.

The Flood

The waters of the River Nene at Peterborough are 15 to 20 feet above the ordinary level, and the current has increased in velocity to 16 and 20 miles per hour. Last night the rise was so sudden that bedrooms in buildings along the river were flooded and the sleepers barely saved their lives. Four thousand acres of grazing land are flooded between Earith and Denburgh, and 3000 cattle deprived of pasturage. The water is 3 or 4 feet deep on 4000 acres of land near Whittlesey. No such flood has been seen in that section of the country for 50 years.

How the Canadians Got Beaten.

The Kalipore cup at Wimbledon was at first won by the Canadians by a walk-over, as the English Team did not go in an appearance. Afterwards upon the arrival of the latter the Canadians voluntarily cancelled their score, which amounted to 569 points and shot the match over with the Englishmen, with the result already announced

THE GREAT OF ENGLISH-SEERS.

BY E. S. BROOKS.

(Recent Discovered Addenda to the Lost Tales of Miletus.)

To Jove, Olympus throned, from lunch refrain ing
Minerva came, complaining
Mt. Gargoyle Lingo[illegible] she said "this is my mis sion—
To bring you to a sense of your position
Your over zealously dyspeptic iron dog,
Allows the gods no rest, day after feasting,
Whilst their palates clack their brain's progress
sion,
And dull their intellects by retrogression
And seeing this, O Jove, I crave permission
To counteract it by direct attrition,
In order that their intellects to strengthen
Their wits to polish and their memories length en."

Permission given, straight Minerva took
Out of her pocket Webster's Spelling Book
Around the Junto sent words quickly hied,
With batch and imperials missed as soon as cried
On! crossed, June weakened, More on! foes," While pouting Venus came to grief through bruising."

On credit "Pindo Vulcan on" crescendo,
While gray beard Neptune raved on "innuendo"
Bacchus with "reeling" made a perfect mess,
At which Minerva tartly cried, "You're drunk"
Then with "messenger" gave Mercury trouble
And Ceres, weeding, mused on "stubble,"
While stoutly trod his funk on "crowded,"
And thus, opposition, said he spelled by Worcester,
Which Old Orator he made his referee.
He was "no stoker" he might spell as he pleased
But out of self lost his power to see better,
In spelling "grumpy" took a needful letter.

Then the whole circle begged her to give over
The gods all pulled her spelling book before
Her, they said "Bless-stocking" said "a night
Like three dukes full of lamb's lunacy—night
Is mood" "nervy lots to Hades go."
And [illegible] as of torment doom to know."

Minerva's brow never rose and closed her book.
And [illegible] while said a withering look.
[illegible] the mob, hurled it with the
